Does LiLo have Trump card up her sleeve?

PM stifles our right to know: Group

REBUKE Journalism associations from across the country have issued a stern rebuke against the Harper government and called on reporters to fight back against its tight information control.

In an open letter Thursday, a number of organizations said that what began as a minor irritant has evolved, over four years, into a veritable threat to the public's right to know. The letter offers a few examples of how elected people and federal employees are muzzled, images are heavily staged and Access to Information requests are blocked by political staff. THE CANADIAN PRESS

World Cup Concentration

ARMANDO FRANCA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Workers trying to find ways to play hooky for World Cup

For many soccer fans, it's going to be tricky catching World Cup games live during the work day, when most games will be played.

For Canadians born in such countries as Brazil, where soccer is huge, work stops when the home team plays a World Cup game. It's just part of the culture.

Studies show absenteeism soars during special events such as the Olympics and FIFA World Cup, which involves at least six hours of play a day for the next 30 days.

In South Africa, the event is expected to cost employers $100 million in lost productivity. No similar data is available for Canada.

Because most games will be broadcast live and streamed online during the work day here, some may resort to calling in sick while others may try to secretly watch the games on their computers, a trend dubbed "virtual absenteeism."

But enlightened employers see major events, like the World Cup, as an opportunity to build morale by giving their staff a "little leeway," said Karen Seward, executive vice-president of business development and marketing at employee benefits consultant Shepell-fgi.

Public lip-lock leads to 90 lashes for Saudi man

SENTENCE A Saudi court convicted a man and sentenced him to four months in prison and 90 lashes for kissing a woman in a mall, a government-owned daily reported Thursday.

Saudi religious police arrested the man and two women after seeing them on mall cameras "engaging in immoral movements in front of other shoppers," the Al-Yom newspaper said.

The kingdom's powerful religious police, under the control of the Commission for the Promotion of Virtue and Prevention of Vice, enforce Saudi Arabia's strict interpretation of Islam, which prohibits unrelated men and women from mingling.

Zealous officers routinely jail unrelated couples found sitting together in restaurants or coffee shops. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TTC union leader arrested

The TTC is reviewing its inventory procedures following the arrest of an employee in connection with the theft of copper wire. Mike Santos, president of CUPE Local 2, which represents about 500 TTC electrical workers, has been charged with theft over $5,000 and the possession of stolen property. He was arrested Wednesday at his Vaughan residence following the execution of a search warrant by York Region Police, working with TTC special constables. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

China meddling in election: Observers

Smitherman invited to speak at 'mayors' forum'

Two prominent local Chinese Canadians say mayoral candidate George Smitherman is being used as a pawn by a Chinese government meddling in Toronto's election.

And China's Toronto consulate is distancing itself from the decision to invite only Smitherman, and not any of the other mayoral candidates or Mayor David Miller, on an all-expenses-paid trip beginning Thursday that will see Smitherman make a speech to a "mayors' forum on tourism" in Zhengzhou, capital of Henan province.

Smitherman

Mayoral rivals have cried foul, accusing China of undiplomatic behaviour and noting that the former deputy premier has never held civic office or a tourism portfolio. Most of the other Ontario politicians flown to China are mayors, including John Gray of Oshawa.

"I consider it to be absolutely inappropriate for the Chinese government to interfere in the Toronto election, for Mr. Smitherman to be the only mayoral candidate to be invited to speak at a mayors' forum," said Gloria Fung, a well-known political analyst and commentator.

"As smart as he is, Mr. Smitherman should realize there are no free trips in this world," she added.

Bedbugs invade Etobicoke hospital

INFESTATION Bedbugs, more often associated with low-income housing, have now jumped to hospitals, including the Etobicoke General site of the William Osler Health Centre, which is currently battling a limited infestation.

The problem has been confined to one area on the main floor — part of the emergency department, the staff lounge and a piece of furniture in the critical care unit. Two staffers have reported bites.

The only live bugs have been found in the staff lounge, which remains sealed off, hospital vice-president Dawne Barbieri said Thursday. Only dead bugs, eggs and droppings have been found in the ER and CCU.

Barbieri emphasized the public is not at risk and patients shouldn't feel deterred from going to the hospital.

RECALL Ikea Canada is voluntarily recalling more than 1.5 million blinds. Spokeswoman Madeleine Lowenborg-Frick says the recall covers all roman, roller and roll-up blinds sold over the past several years. She says the blinds can cause strangulation if the installation instructions are not followed properly. A similar recall, affecting more than three million blinds, was issued across the United States after a toddler was nearly strangled by the cord. Lowenborg-Frick says there have been no reports of injuries or deaths in Canada, but says one U.S. resident was killed in 2008. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Beauty queen creates ugly scene

'African child' remark draws jeers from school audience

It started off well enough. Beauty queen Tiffany Munro was talking to Oshawa high school students about body image, saying she put on weight to enter the Miss Universe Canada competition.

Munro

Pageant organizers, the 26-year-old said, didn't want them looking anorexic, "like some little African child with the ribs going on."

Rumblings and muted jeers erupted from the audience at G.L. Roberts Collegiate and Vocational Institute, and a fellow contestant who had just described her experience in a Rwandan refugee camp gasped in shock.

The event Thursday morning was to have been a chance for the pageant's 62 contestants to practise their public speaking skills.

For Munro, it was a hard lesson learned.

"Skeletons," the Edmonton native said later. "I meant to say they don't want us to look like skeletons. But I'm still half-asleep after having to get up at 5 a.m."

Munro, a filmmaker who has her own production company, said she was apologizing to everyone for the gaffe that "just slipped out."

African-born Solange Tuyishime, 26, spent much of her time onstage being consoled by another contestant.

"I was hurt" by the reference to "stereotypical images they show on TV," she said in an interview. "It's very sad that in 2010 when we make references to the poor, we think of African children, because poverty is everywhere."

But the "beauty" of the pageant, she added graciously, is that it gives them an opportunity "to learn from each other."

'Honour killing' claims fall flat as father given life sentence

BRAMPTON Kamikar Singh Dhillon claims he killed his daughter-in-law because he suspected she was going to leave her husband and disgrace the family. In a Brampton courtroom, he almost defended it as an "honour" killing. Trouble is, no one believes him.

The judge didn't believe him, neither did the Crown. Homicide investigators found no evidence to confirm his allegations of a sexual relationship between the woman and another man, or that she was soon to leave her husband.

Still, Crown attorney Steve Sherriff did tell a sentencing hearing Wednesday that "this chilling and disturbing mindset needs an extra deterrence." And he added that the Crown's office is reviewing other murder cases in Peel "to see if this is a dynamic that we have overlooked."

In setting Dhillon's sentence without parole at 15 years, Justice Bruce Durno said, "His motivation, to save the family pride, was a profoundly disturbing aspect of this crime. ... It is not now or never will be the right thing to do."

But the Punjabi community in the Toronto area has called Dhillon's "honour" killing claim an outrageous defence, one that has been discussed threadbare at Punjabi-language call-in radio and TV shows.

"It wasn't an honour killing," said Baldev Mutta, executive director of Punjabi Community Health Services in the Peel Region. "It was plain, simple murder ... there are no honour killings among Punjabis ... at least not here."

Man sought over seniors scam

CRIME Police in Toronto and Winnipeg are joining forces to hunt for a man they allege has been ripping off seniors.

A Canada-wide warrant has been issued for 54-year-old Richard Earl Rupert.

The suspect is wanted on numerous charges including robbery, break and enter, theft and fraud.

Police allege there have been 20 victims ranging in age from 78 to 95.

Toronto police say the suspect goes to retirement homes and communities and presents himself as a distant relative, usually a nephew.

He then convinces the victims to provide him with money for travel, car repairs or rent.

Teachers' selloff plan puzzles Maple Leaf's CEO

STOCKS Maple Leaf Foods CEO Michael McCain says a long-time shareholder hasn't given a reason why it wants to sell its 35 per cent stake.

The Ontario Teachers' Pension Plan is reportedly planning to sell its $450-million stake in the Toronto-based food processing company, ending a long-time partnership with the McCain family, as well as one of the fund's biggest investments in a public company.

"Teachers', as any shareholder, makes their own decisions on investment, and that's a decision that they never comment on and undoubtedly won't share with others, nor should they," McCain said Thursday, following a speech to the Empire Club of Canada.

"All we know is that they've been incredibly supportive. They participate in the future of this organization and have for 15 years."
Maple Leaf CEO Michael McCain

"All we know is that they've been incredibly supportive. They participate in the future of this organization and have for 15 years."

In the mid-'90s, Teachers' paired with the McCain family to support a takeover of the company and has since held a large stake. McCain didn't seem overly concerned with Teachers' intentions, saying Maple Leaf's primary focus is executing its new business strategy.

"We're excited as hell about that. The board has unanimously endorsed that strategy and our job as managers is to just focus on the opportunities that we have in front of us to realize the benefit and the value creation from that strategy, and really that's all I can say," he said.

Anti-idling motion may do more harm than good for TTC

TRANSIT Higher repair bills and, ironically, more pollution.

That's the outlook for the TTC's diesel bus fleet if the agency has to abide by a motion passed Wednesday, which would limit legal idling time for vehicles, including city buses, to no more than one minute.

TTC chair Adam Giambrone said Thursday requiring compliance could cause more pollution if it interferes with the turbochargers found in most of the TTC's diesel engines.

A turbocharger makes the bus more fuel-efficient. It runs at about 100,000 rotations per minute rather than 2,000 rpms. Because it runs so hot, it needs about three minutes to cool down in an idling phase or the part can seize, putting the bus out of service. It costs about $8,000 to replace.

Even if the turbocharger doesn't fail, the burned oil created in this process sends more particulate matter into the air.

Pension reform closer to reality

Flaherty, Duncan release views

Ottawa has jumped onto the pension-reform bandwagon with both feet.

The federal government wants to expand the Canada Pension Plan and relax rules for financial institutions to give them the leeway to offer pension plans to self-employed people, small business and anyone not covered by a corporate plan.

Duncan

In a letter to his provincial counterparts Thursday, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty finally set out his public-private vision for pension reform. It lines up neatly with a similar vision put forward by Ontario's finance minister, Dwight Duncan, also in a letter released Thursday.

Taken together, the united stance of the two key ministers suggests a consensus is in the works, and concrete measures to change the pension system are likely just months away.

The expanded CPP should be complemented by changes to federal tax rules and federal and provincial modifications for pension standards, Flaherty said. That way, governments can allow banks and insurance companies the flexibility they need to offer low-cost pension plans to multiple employers, all types of employees, and the self-employed.

Flaherty and Duncan are not signing on to the suggestion from unions and the NDP to double CPP benefits. They urge a more gradual approach that would see a smaller increase in contributions and payments.

The two ministers' positions have been two years in the making. They wrote their letters to colleagues just three days before federal-provincial meetings on the pension issue.

Deal saves refugee reform bill

OTTAWA The Harper government has salvaged its faltering refugee reform legislation by working out a deal of its own with the "socialists and the separatists."

Immigration Minister Jason Kenney hailed the compromise with the NDP and Bloc Québécois as a "win-win" and said it shows a minority Parliament can work.

MPs on the immigration committee hashed out the details late Wednesday, emerging with all-party support for a bill that is substantially different than what was originally tabled this spring.

Generally, the reforms aim to deter fraudsters from manipulating Canada's system, but also speed approvals for legitimate applicants. Kenney said the revised bill will still let the minister designate certain countries as sources of spurious refugee claims, but people who get caught up in that system will have a quick right to appeal. Dimmer job prospects for immigrants: Report

EMPLOYMENT The Toronto Board of Trade is calling on the city's mayoral candidates to address the deteriorating employment prospects for new immigrants.

The business think-tank's plea came after its own report, released Thursday, found Toronto is doing a worse job of integrating newcomers than it did two decades ago. According to the report, in 1980 immigrant men and women earned 85 cents for every dollar made by their Canadian counterparts; in 2000 it had declined to 67 cents for men and 65 cents for women. Camera to keep watch

Last year's teen mob after jazz fest spurs surveillance

Beach teenagers know the Mac's convenience store at the corner of Queen Street East and Hammersmith Avenue is the place to meet.

It's the only place open all night after the bars close and the festivals end. But teens who gather there after the Beaches International Jazz Festival in July may find themselves on police camera.

Responding to homeowners who complained that a young crowd spun out of control on Hammersmith after the festival one night last year, Toronto police will send a van with a camera on the roof to sit outside the Mac's this year.

"We want to be sure we know they're being photographed," said Sgt. Mark Walsh of 55 Division.

The decision to use mounted police to disperse a crowd of about 300 teenagers and young adults who gathered at the Mac's last year after the festival was controversial.

The group was rowdy, even teenagers who took part admit. Some Hammersmith residents were infuriated when the teenagers taunted them, walked over parked cars and broke off car side-mirrors. Police say there were fights going on in the crowd and they were worried the crowd could begin pouring down Queen.

Walsh said mobile cameras have been effective in controlling crowds at the annual Caribana festival.

Top court upholds accused's right to a publication ban

Ruling called a setback to media organizations

The Supreme Court of Canada has upheld a defendant's right to an automatic publication ban on evidence at their bail hearing.

The high court dismissed appeals Thursday brought by several news organizations that argued judges should have the final say on pretrial publication bans.

The 8-1 ruling upholds a Criminal Code provision that makes a publication ban at a bail hearing mandatory if an accused person requests one.

"The ban as it stands now is censorship." Dave Tomlin, counsel for AP

The ruling is the latest in a series of cases Canada's top court has considered on the practice of journalism.

Observers say it's a setback for media organizations that were trying to loosen the restrictions on pretrial reporting in the age of the 24/7 news cycle.

The high court was grappling with two competing interests — the need for justice to be seen to be done versus the impact of pretrial publicity on a defendant's right to a fair trial.

Ultimately, the top court decided against allowing too much publicity at the early stages.

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

A woman walks past the scene of the ruling, the Supreme Court of Canada, in Ottawa yesterday.

What the judges said

- Writing for the majority, Justice Marie Deschamps said the beneficial effects of bail-hearing publication bans outweigh the negatives.
- The bans "avert the disclosure of untested prejudicial information; in other words, to guarantee as much as possible trial fairness and fair access to bail," she wrote. "Although not a perfect outcome, the mandatory ban represents a reasonable compromise.".
- Justice Rosie Abella was the lone dissenter, saying judges should have the discretion to decide whether bans should be imposed.

Justice Marie Deschamps noted publication bans are temporary and end when a defendant is discharged at the end of a preliminary inquiry, or their trial has been completed.

Nor does a publication ban prevent a journalist from reporting the conditions of a defendant's release.

The case was brought by the Associated Press, CBC, CTV, Toronto Star and Edmonton Journal.

Dave Tomlin, associate general counsel for The AP, said: "The ban as it stands now is censorship."

"It's a prior restraint on speech, and we don't think such restraints should be imposed without a balancing by the judge in each case of the free-speech and fair-trial issues at stake."

Capt. Kirk fights for wild salmon

WILDLIFE William Shatner wants British Columbia's wild salmon to live long and prosper.

The Canadian icon, made famous for his work as Capt. James T. Kirk in the Star Trek series, has waded into efforts to protect wild fish from sea lice.

B.C. aquaculture critics have long accused farmed fish of spreading parasites to wild stocks.

Fin Donnelly, the federal New Democrat Fisheries and Oceans critic, introduced a private member's bill last month that would force fish farm operators to move from open nets along the B.C. coast to closed-containment systems.

Shatner joined Donnelly on a conference call Thursday in which he urged Canadians to prevent their precious resources from being destroyed.

"As a father and a grandfather (it's my) wish that my offspring live to see the same things I did, the wildlife and the wilderness," said Shatner.

Shatner, 79, said he gained personal experience with B.C. fish a few years ago when he did some filming on Vancouver Island and in the province's interior.

Comets not from the sun?

SKY Some comets that streak across the night sky may not originate from our sun, but from one of its siblings.

A study suggests comets such as Halley, Hale-Bopp and McNaught may have been born in orbit around other stars.

Queen's University professor Martin Duncan says the comets may represent a "potpourri" of material that came from sibling stars.

Canada a role model, says Britain's ex-PM

Canada is a model for the world to follow after the global economic meltdown, a former British prime minister said Thursday.

John Major said the examples set by Liberal governments in Canada in the 1990s could provide good ideas to current governments as they grapple with huge debts.

"As far as how people are going to get through these difficult decisions … we (need) to take Canada as a template," Major said during a discussion with TV host Charlie Rose at an international economic conference in Montreal.

"They did it, not in exactly the same circumstances, but in broadly similar circumstances.

"And I think you have to prepare people for what is going to be done and explain to people why it has to be done."

He acknowledged there is often a problem in communicating complex ideas through the media, where Major said "sound bites dominate."

In his speech earlier, Major said that while Britain has emerged from the recession, growth is still anemic.

"We will have a budget in 12 days time that is likely to raise taxes, cut spending and set a path toward fiscal balance.

"It'll be more painful than most Britons can remember in recent years but it is unavoidable."

Report into Dziekanski's death out soon

INQUIRY The final report into the death of Robert Dziekanski will be made public within two weeks.

Retired B.C. judge Thomas Braidwood has led a two-part inquiry into the death of the Polish immigrant who was jolted by an RCMP Taser at Vancouver airport in 2007.

B.C. Attorney General Mike de Jong says after the report is made public, he will address the issue of possible charges against the four Mounties involved.

The first phase of the inquiry dealt with the use of stun guns by police in B.C., and the second report focuses on the events that led to Dziekanski's death.

What Can You Spare?

Every day, Toronto Animal Services gives shelter to animals with bone fractures and other serious injuries or illnesses. With professional care, they too can be placed in good homes. But medical procedures can quickly exceed Toronto Animal Services' budget. Only donations can help the animals.

No matter how great or small your donation, 100 per cent of it is used to enhance the lives of animals through sterilization, providing necessary medical procedures and enriching their stay in the shelter, improving their chances of adoption into a lifelong loving home. Tax receipts are issued for donations of $10.00 or more. And money's just one way donors can help.

"We also accept supplies directly," says Carl Bandow, a TAS supervisor. "We need dog biscuits, cat treats; toys, perches; leashes, collars; combs, nail trimmers; heaters and lighting for exotic animals; blankets; even can openers. The only thing we can't accept is an opened bag or box of food."

Call it spring cleaning for a good cause. Will you consider donating today? Visit www.toronto.ca/animal_services to help the animals. Thank you!

Judge toasts new Walkerton facility

OPENING The judge who presided over the tainted-water inquiry in Walkerton, Ont. returned to the site of the E. coli disaster Thursday to toast a new state-of-the-art training facility.

Associate Chief Justice Dennis O'Connor and other dignitaries raised glasses of water to officially open the Walkerton Clean Water Centre, which provides hands-on training for owners and operators of water systems.

"To actually see this facility is overwhelming — it is spectacular," he said. "I can't say ... I (had) envisioned something that is so positive and so important."

O'Connor became a familiar figure in the town of 5,000 when he led a public inquiry into the May 2000 disaster that killed seven people and made 2,500 others ill. His inquiry found that heavy rain had washed E. coli-laden manure into a faulty municipal well run by poorly trained and dishonest operators.

The new $8.3-million, 1,700-square-metre training centre located on Walkerton's eastern edge has life-size water-treatment equipment, a mini-water tower, labs and classrooms.

OIL SPILLS Thousands of oil spills flow into Canadian waters annually, and the federal government is preparing to spend up to $5 million over the next three years to clean some of them. Prom Girls author Lesley Fletcher says she had no interest in attending her prom while growing up in London, Ont., and still has no regrets about not going.

Tales out of school

Lesley Fletcher seems like an unlikely candidate to write a book about proms considering she had no interest in attending her own — and didn't.

One of the reasons tied to her decision was that at the time she considered herself "anti-establishment."

"There was a little bit of rebel in me, I suppose," said Fletcher, 51, who grew up in London, Ont. She also believed the prom was perhaps a bit advanced at that stage in her life. "That's why I didn't end up going."

However, when Fletcher picked up a paintbrush for the first time last May and began drawing figures, suddenly proms were on her mind. She soon had an entire story laid out in illustrations well before the actual literary work took shape.

Her watercolour images of faceless characters in brightly hued dresses served as a source of inspiration as well as illustration in her debut book, Prom Girls: A North American Rite of Passage. Fletcher said about 90 per cent of the stories were drawn from real-life situations.

The book documents the full scope of the perennial high-school milestone.

Mom left 'completely broken' by baby's death

MAULING A teenage mother charged in Quebec in the dog mauling death of her baby says she's devastated by what's happened to her. In an interview Wednesday, the 17-year-old young mother told the French language TVA network she's "completely broken."

The teenager, who cannot be identified, was arrested Monday in Saint-Barnabe-Sud and charged with manslaughter.

Police said the three-week-old baby was attacked by a husky as she sat on the floor strapped in her car seat. The baby's father, who wasn't home at the time, said the baby's mother and grandmother were outside smoking when the dog attacked, and by the time they responded it was too late.

The mother, who returns to court Aug. 31, told TVA she feels shock and guilt, but also anger at prosecutors for what she feels is a rush to judgment.

Fair Trade Vancouver executive director Jeff Geipel poses for a photograph while drinking a cappuccino made with Fair Trade coffee in Vancouver, B.C., on Monday.

Fair Trade perks

Idea gains traction in Canada

When Jeff Geipel was volunteering in Ghana in 2007, he and a friend split the $50 cost of a bicycle to thank a man who'd given them shelter for several months.

"His graciousness and the way he took it was just the most amazing thing, really, that I'd ever seen — that so little would accomplish so much," said the Vancouver man.

Three years later, that memory of West Africa still drives the 27-year-old, who works nights as a waiter while spending his days heading Fair Trade Vancouver, urging consumers to shun conventional coffee, sugar and tropical fruits.

The non-profit organization promotes products with a sticker certifying that the people who actually grew the goods are getting paid a decent wage.

The Fair Trade movement is gaining traction.

Vancouver became the first major Canadian city to gain Fair Trade Town status last month.

The city joins 13 others with that title in Canada, including Wolfville, N.S., La Peche, Que., Gimli, Man, and Barrie, Ont. At least eight cities are poised to follow suit, including St. John's, Quebec City, Montreal and Windsor, Ont. Demand for Fair Trade products in Canada grew 67 per cent last year. Spare some change: New taxes needed

UrbanCompass

David Miller's biggest mistake as mayor was not securing the city a large and steady source of new income within the city's control. City Hall does not have the money it needs to make Toronto a place we can be proud to call home.

Almost from his first days as mayor in early 2004, Miller demanded that other governments give Toronto the extra money it needs.

Ottawa provides about $50 million per year from gasoline taxes. That's real money, but small change in the city's $9-billion budget. The province gave significant financial support for the city's transit plan, but when Premier Dalton McGuinty delayed payments by a few years because of its own budget problems, Miller was furious and began an ad campaign against the premier.

David Miller

But no politician wants to increase taxes and then give that money to other politicians to spend. It is not a winning strategy. Miller kept at it anyway.

The city needs its own sources of tax revenue, like its own sales tax. A one per cent tax on goods and services raises about $700 million in Toronto per year, and a two per cent GST would generate an extra $1.5 billion per year. (Stephen Harper cut the GST by two per cent saying he didn't need the money.) Toronto needs it to repair roads, improve transit, build affordable housing, and expand social and recreational programs.

Miller refused to ask Queen's Park for the legislation to levy that tax, even when the opportunity was there when the new City of Toronto Act was being drafted five years ago. Now the city is broke.

But Mayor Miller is fading away. We are now staring at a bunch of candidates for his job. None of them have said they will ask for the new taxing powers the city so clearly needs to deliver good government and strong programs.

Will our new mayor be up to the challenge?

Safehaven Project for Community Living seeks help

Unfortunately, I am writing this letter to share some heartbreaking news. A single mother of one of our respite children was brutally murdered earlier this week. The child, whose name must remain confidential to coincide with the criminal investigation, was dropped off at Safehaven Project for Community Living.

Because this child's home is now the centre of a crime scene, they do not have any of their belongings.

To better accommodate this child, I ask you to please spread the word to your family and friends that it would be in the best interest of this child to have the following items donated to Safehaven: Pampers, Cruisers, size 6; Johnson's Baby Products (powder, oil, lotion); baby wipes; blanket; toys/stuffed animals; toiletries; pyjamas, children's size 6; clothing, preferably summer attire including T-shirts, shorts and adjustable waste shorts, children's size 6; Nutren Junior w/Fibre (liquid meal replacement).

Should anyone like to make a financial donation, it will be used toward medication for this child.

Your support and generosity is appreciated.

SURVEY Women tend to flirt more than men, but men show more expertise and technical flair, according to an online survey. PsychTests AIM, a Montreal-based provider of psychological assessment products, conducted the online flirting test just for fun. To lure a member of the opposite sex, men's most tried-and-true technique is leaning in while talking. Women's saucy strategy is looking deep into a guy's eyes, according to the survey. As for types, more women tend to be flitty flirts, simply having fun, anytime, anyplace, with anyone. More men are the single-minded attention-for-sex types, what the survey calls "carnal flirts." When it comes to flirting, both sexes are far from honourable. Thirty-six per cent of men and 31 per cent of women said they would intentionally set off sparks with someone at a bar just to make their girlfriend or boyfriend jealous. Congress to BP: Pay up

Lawmakers push oil giant on compensation for victims

U.S. congressional leaders stepped up the pressure on oil giant BP to fully compensate economic victims of the Gulf spill as President Barack Obama prepared to offer condolences Thursday to the relatives of the 11 rig workers killed in the April 20 explosion.

The leader of the House of Representatives, Speaker Nancy Pelosi, said that "every taxpayer in America must know that BP will be held accountable for what is owed." She spoke at the White House after Obama met with congressional leaders of both parties.

Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell agreed BP has to "clean up the spill," but he said Democratic lawmakers should not use the tragedy to try to build support for an energy bill.

Asked if BP should cut its dividends to shareholders, Pelosi said, "I think it's appropriate for BP to be paying businesses in the Gulf. They have a responsibility under the law to pay these damages. They made $17 billion last year. Maybe people who receive dividends have deeper pockets."

Obama wrote to the families of those killed and invited them to visit the White House on Thursday.

Asked whether Obama thought the families of the 11 men had been lost in the focus on efforts to stop the millions of gallons of crude gushing from the well, Gibbs said, "They are certainly not forgotten."

"They were the very first victims of what is a very long and sad tragedy," he said Wednesday.

Iran's 'muscle' a master at getting around sanctions

NUCLEAR Iran's powerful Revolutionary Guard is now in the cross-hairs of UN penalties over Tehran's nuclear program, and it's an elusive target — a master at the sanctions-busting strategies long used by the Islamic Republic.

Iran has used a combination of third-party companies, deals with deep-pocket allies such as China, and the financial cushion of its oil exports to get around sanctions. The Guard is the muscle behind the clerical rulers and has its hand in every level of the country's economic, military, foreign policy and nuclear planning. It also is at the centre of evasive strategies.

Even with two of Iran's lifelines — Russia and China — backing the latest Security Council measures, Iran denied being boxed in. Commerce Minister Mahdi Ghazanfari said Thursday in Beijing that Iran would find "new ways" to overcome the UN action.

These could include simply setting up new companies to funnel equipment to Iran's nuclear and defence programs or leaning more on friendly states such as Venezuela and perhaps even neighbouring Turkey to keep money channels open, experts said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Long reach

- At least 15 of the companies and groups named in the new UN sanctions list are linked to the Revolutionary Guard. Nearly all the rest have connections to nuclear and ballistic missile programs, which are directly under the Guard's control.

Teen lost at sea

Girl in latest bid to be youngest to sail solo around the world loses communication in Indian Ocean

A 16-year-old Southern California girl attempting a solo sail around the world was feared in trouble Thursday in the frigid, heaving southern Indian Ocean after her emergency beacons began signalling and communication was lost.

RICHARD HARTOG/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Abby Sunderland's family was talking with U.S. and international governments about organizing a search of the remote ocean between southern Africa and Australia, family spokesman Christian Pinkston said.

Conditions can quickly become perilous for any sailor exposed to the elements in that part of the world.

"We've got to get a plane out there quick," said Pinkston, adding that the teen's family was asking for prayers for her safety.

"They are exhausting every resource to try to mobilize an air rescue including discussions with the U.S. State Department, the U.S. Coast Guard and various international rescue organizations," he said. The closest land is France's Reunion Island, east of Madagascar, though the exact distance wasn't clear.

Abby last communicated with her family at 4 a.m. PDT and reported nine-metre swells but was not in distress, Pinkston said.

An hour later the family was notified that her emergency beacons had been activated, and there was no further communication. Pinkston said the beacons were manually activated.

Abby set sail from Los Angeles in her 12-metre boat on Jan. 23 in an attempt to become the youngest person to sail around the world alone without stopping. Her brother Zac briefly held the record in 2009.

Abby soon ran into equipment problems and had to stop for repairs. She gave up the goal of setting the record in April, but continued on.

On May 15, Australian 16-year-old Jessica Watson claimed the record after completing a 37,013 kilometre circumnavigation in 210 days.

Sunderland left Cape Town, South Africa, on May 21 and on Monday reached the halfway point of her voyage. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SMOKING BAN Egypt is taking its first serious stab at clamping down on smoking with a campaign launched Thursday to enforce a ban in the scenic seaside city of Alexandria — no small feat in a nation where four out of 10 men use tobacco. Authorities are determined to enforce a 2007 law that banned smoking in government buildings, hospitals and schools. It did not take on the more ambitious targets of cafés and restaurants. The law has largely gone ignored, but now those who defy it will be facing hefty penalties. "I think it will be serious this time," said Fatma El-Awa, the World Health Organization spokeswoman in Cairo. "A country in the region is finally following in the footsteps" of European nations, she added. This is the second major step to kick the habit in Egypt. A new law passed in late May raised cigarette taxes by as much as 40 per cent.

CONNECTICUT Authorities say a Connecticut man's arm has been amputated after it was stuck for at least three days in his furnace. Police found 31-year-old Jonathan Metz in his West Hartford basement Wednesday night after friends grew worried when he missed work, did not answer calls and failed to show up at a softball game. Authorities say he apparently was working on the furnace over the weekend when his left arm got stuck, trapping him for days. Firefighters had to rip apart the furnace to get him out. They said he was mumbling during the rescue and that firefighters couldn't determine exactly how long he had been trapped. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Iraq dead last in peace ranks

Less violence in Canada, China, Cuba than U.S.: Aussie think-tank

Cuba and China are more peaceful than the United States, according to a report published Thursday.

The global peace index, prepared by the Sydney, Australia-based Institute for Economics and Peace, says the world in general is becoming a more violent place. The report says nearly two-thirds of the countries it ranks every year have become more violent since 2007.

Iraq is the most violent nation in the world, the report says, followed by Somalia, Afghanistan, Sudan, Pakistan, Israel, Georgia, Chad and the Democratic Republic of Congo.

Beacons of peace are New Zealand — which tops the index — Iceland, Japan, Austria, Norway, Ireland, Denmark, Luxembourg, Finland and Sweden. The United States ranks 85th, below Cuba and China and just ahead of Angola.

14 Canada was ranked 14th out of 149 nations, ahead of Qatar but below Portugal.

The idea for the index came from Steve Killelea, an Australian entrepreneur who wanted to identify what makes a peaceful country. He asked the Economist Intelligence Unit, which is affiliated with the Economist news magazine, to look at a range of variables, from levels of homicides per 100,000 people — which drags down America and boosts Denmark — to corruption and access to primary education.

4 severed heads found in Guatemalan capital: Cops

GUATEMALA CITY Four decapitated heads were found in prominent areas of the capital Thursday in what police said were likely revenge killings in response to a crackdown on organized crime.

The heads were discovered at the main door of the congressional building, near a fire station, on the stairs of a popular shopping centre and in a neighbourhood in northern Guatemala City, said police spokesman Donald Gonzalez. Attached to the heads were messages written on cardboard blaming the government for the deaths. Police found what they believe to be the bodies of two of the victims, none of whom have been identified. No arrests have been made.

The killings come after several high-profile arrests of suspected drug traffickers and new rules against inmates who smuggled drugs, alcohol, weapons and women into prisons, Gonzalez said.

Prince Sagala, left, covers her face from a reporter as she arrives at her home in Montclair, Calif. Sagala's first husband, Faustino Utrera, kidnapped their young children 15 years ago, but Sagala recently found them on Facebook. Utrera was arrested in Florida and is facing kidnapping charges.

No happy ending

Facebook kids don't want to see mother

Prince Sagala desperately searched for her son and daughter for 15 years, fearing she had lost them forever to the estranged husband who took them to his native Mexico.

Her fears were replaced by joy when she typed her daughter's name into Facebook on a library computer and discovered that her children, now 16 and 17, were safe and with their father. She soon learned they were living near Disney World in Florida.

But in a span of days, a mother eagerly hoping for a happy reunion realized another nightmare was just beginning: They didn't want her. And for her children, their father was suddenly in jail and their life outside Orlando was turned upside down.

"She thought I was a stranger woman," said Sagala, who lives in Montclair, Calif. "I wrote back and she deleted it. Then, she disappeared."

Authorities tracked down the children and arrested their father, Faustino Fernandez Utrera, 42, on kidnapping and child custody charges May 26. Sagala is now racing to regain custody of her children before they turn 18 and she loses them to adulthood.

Florida authorities have temporarily placed the children with a non-relative whom the pair know and set a hearing for later this month.

"This has been so traumatic for them. The father, the only person they've known as a parent, is now in jail. When they have children of their own, when they're 25, 26, 27 years of age, it's going to dawn on them what their mother lost," Montclair police Det. Debbie Camou said.

Man confesses to 19 murders

KENYA Kenyan police Thursday said a man who they had initially arrested on kidnapping charges has confessed to killing 19 people in three years and claimed his target was to slay 100.

Richard Katola, a top police official, said in the last three days the suspect, Richard Onyancha, has led police to several murder scenes, four where police recovered bodily remains of his alleged victims.

Onyancha was arrested last week after police tracked him down through a mobile phone he was using to send ransom demands to the family of a nine-year-old kidnap victim. Police said Onyancha has confessed to killing the boy and 18 other people.

"According to him women were his main targets and he wanted to kill 100."
Charles Owina, Kenyan police

National police spokesman Charles Owino said Onyancha continued to send text messages with ransom demands to the family of the nine-year-old boy a month after killing him.

Police recovered the boy's remains from a bush after Onyancha led them to the scene.

The 32-year-old suspect, who was a former guard with an international security company, led police on Tuesday to a swampy area near lake Naivasha, about 75 kilometres northwest of Kenya's capital Nairobi, to look for the bodies of two more alleged victims, Owino said. Police have yet to recover remains.

"According to him women were his main targets and he wanted to kill 100," Owino said.

Minorities may become majority

POPULATION The minority population in the United States is steadily rising and now makes up 35 per cent of the total, advancing an unmistakable trend that could render minorities the new American majority by mid-century.

New census estimates show minorities added more than two per cent in 2009 to 107.2 million people, boosted by a surge in Hispanic births and more people who described themselves as multiracial. During this time, the white population remained flat, making up roughly 199.9 million, or 65 per cent, of the country.

In 2000, whites comprised 69 per cent of the total population and minorities 31 per cent.

Currently, four states — Hawaii, New Mexico, California and Texas — as well as Washington, D.C., have minority populations that exceed 50 per cent.

Shrinking glaciers to affect millions: Study

But impact smaller than originally feared

Nearly 60 million people living around the Himalayas will suffer food shortages in the coming decades as glaciers shrink and the water sources for crops dry up, a study said Thursday.

But Dutch scientists writing in the journal Science concluded the impact would be much less than previously estimated a few years ago by the UN Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change.

The UN report in 2007 warned that hundred of millions of people were at risk from disappearing glaciers. The reason for the discrepancy, scientists said, is that some basins surrounding the Himalayas depend more on rainfall than melting glaciers for their water sources.

Those that do count heavily on glaciers like the Indus, Ganges and Brahamaputra basins in South Asia could see their water supplies decline by as much as 19.6 per cent by 2050. China's Yellow River basin, in contrast, would see a 9.5 per cent increase precipitation as monsoon patterns change due to the changing climate.

"We show that it's only a certain areas that will be affected," said Utrecht University Hydrology Prof. Marc Bierkens, who along with Walter Immerzee and Ludovicus van Beek conducted the study.

"The amount of people effected is still large. Every person is one too many but its much less than was first anticipated."

Groundbreaking research

- The study is one of the first to examine the impact of shrinking glaciers on the Himalayan river basins. It will likely further fuel the debate on the degree that climate change will devastate the river basins that are mostly located in India, Pakistan, Nepal, Bangladesh, Bhutan and China.

Four Bosnian Serbs await judgment in the trial of seven Bosnian Serb army and police officials in The Hague on Thursday.

Guilty of genocide

CONVICTIONS Two Bosnian Serbs were convicted of genocide and sentenced to life imprisonment Thursday for the 1995 massacre of some 8,000 Muslims in Srebrenica — the harshest judgment ever delivered by the UN war crimes tribunal on the Balkan wars.

A third Bosnian Serb officer was given a 35-year prison sentence for aiding and abetting genocide. Two others were acquitted of genocide charges but convicted of extermination, murder and persecution, while a final two officers were found guilty of lesser charges of war crimes. Sentences for those four ranged from four to 19 years.

It was a dramatic conclusion to the largest trial conducted by the tribunal, set up in 1993 to prosecute the worst war crimes offenders even while fighting was still underway among ethnic groups in the disintegrating Yugoslavia.

Hamas says no to chips and a pop

MIDDLE EAST The Hamas government said Thursday it will not let newly approved food items into the Gaza Strip as long as Israel maintains its blockade of the territory.

Israel slightly eased the much-criticized blockade on Wednesday by permitting snacks, spices and some other previously banned food items into Gaza. The order was symbolic at best, leaving a ban in place on desperately needed construction and industrial materials.

Hamas Economics Minister Ziad al-Zaza said the government would not allow imports of potato chips, soft drinks and fruit salad from neighbouring Israel. He said Gaza's own factories could produce these goods if Israel would only allow in raw materials.

"Gaza does not need soft drinks, soda and fruit salad. Gaza needs raw materials, cement, and spare parts for the local factories," al-Zaza said.

South Korean space setback

Rocket carrying satellite explodes early in flight

A South Korean rocket carrying a climate observation satellite apparently exploded 137 seconds into its flight early Thursday, the country's second major space setback in less than a year.

The two-stage Naro rocket operated normally during and after liftoff from the country's space centre, Minister of Education, Science and Technology Ahn Byong-man said. But then communications with the rocket were lost after it reached an altitude of about 70 kilometres.

"We believe that the Naro rocket is likely to have exploded," he told reporters. "We are sorry for failing to live up to people's expectations."

> "We are sorry for failing to live up to people's expectations."
> Ahn Byong-man, minister of education, science and technology

An image from a camera aboard the Naro brightened like a flash of light, possibly evidence of an explosion, Ahn said.

He said South Korean and Russian experts were trying to find the cause of the mishap. The first stage of the rocket was designed and built by Russia and the second by South Korea.

Ahn said South Korea will begin preparations to announce a new launch date as soon as the origin of the problem is determined. South Korea wants to put a satellite into orbit to study global warming and climate change.

Brampton plant to build luxury Lancias?

Chrysler's Canadian workers haven't received official word that they will be building Fiat's Lancia luxury vehicles, but a union leader says it would be "perfect" for the company's Brampton plant.

Industry research firm AutomotiveCompass has said it believes Chrysler will begin building Lancias in Brampton beginning in 2012. "If it happens, that would be perfect. I know it's just a matter of time," said Leon Rideout, local president for the Canadian Auto Workers in Brampton.

AutomotiveCompass forecaster Doug Shepard said the firm put two and two together from speeches Fiat CEO Sergio Marchionne has given to both Chrysler and Fiat audiences, including a reference to a "Lancia 300C." This implies the vehicle would be based on Chrysler's 300C full-sized sedan but would be sold in Europe under the Lancia brand.

Production volumes will be small, with 10,000 to 15,000 units expected to be built annually, Shepard said. Because the volume would be only about four per cent of the plant's capacity — it's unlikely it will result in any additional jobs. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alfa Romeo

For many, pensions won't be enough: TD

A new report from TD Economics warns that unless the pension system is reformed, a growing number of Canadians won't have adequate income in retirement to maintain their standard of living.

The report released yesterday comes in advance of next week's meeting of federal and provincial finance ministers in Prince Edward Island, where the retirement income system will be discussed.

"If we don't see material changes within the next five years then we're going to start running into greater risks that individuals are going to experience this decline in the standard of living," said Craig Alexander, TD's chief economist.

He said a decline in personal savings, rising household debt levels, volatile markets and declining employer pension coverage will affect the lifestyle of future retirees.

"The bottom line is that more Canadians are likely to find that they experience a lower standard of living in retirement over the next four decades," Alexander said.

He said close to 25 per cent of seniors are not meeting the traditional benchmark of 60 to 70 per cent replacement of their pre-retirement income.

He said the retirement system is doing a good job of keeping retirees out of poverty, but not enough to ensure they can maintain their standard of living, and governments need to act.

"More Canadians are likely to find that they experience a lower standard of living in retirement over the next four decades"

Chief Economist, TD

He is calling on governments to raise annual limits for RRSPs and defined contribution pension plans, and to improve the rules for employer-sponsored defined benefit plans.

Bank of Canada warns of Europe crisis impact

While the European debt crisis has only had a "modest" impact on Canada, the crisis isn't over and all governments need to be on healthy fiscal paths, Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney said Thursday.

PAUL CHIASSON/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney speaks at the International Organization of Securities Commissions annual conference Thursday in Montreal.

"So there's been a modest impact on financial conditions — a slight tightening of financial conditions in Canada — and a modest impact on commodity prices," Carney said at a news conference.

"But it's not over. You know, this is serious stuff," he said, adding it is "incredibly important" to execute the right policies to deal with the situation.

Carney said he's encouraged with the measures that European policy-makers have taken so far "but I don't think anybody is of the view that more will not be required."

"What we are seeing at present is a stronger demand from the market for more credible plans, more rapid plans, more rapid movements to fiscal sustainability at any level of government."

BMO Capital Markets senior economist Michael Gregory said Carney's remarks suggest the Bank of Canada has room to raise its key rates in July — following a quarter-point hike this month.

This week, the World Bank raised the possibility of a second recession affecting most of the industrialized world if governments don't deal with the unfolding European debt crisis affecting such countries as Greece and Spain.

During his speech to a Montreal economic conference, Carney said banks should prepare for radical reforms to the world's financial system that will make it look a lot more like what's already in Canada.

Trade back in surplus: StatsCan

TRADE Canada's key export sector is being hit hard by Europe's troubles, but not enough to overcome improving conditions in markets elsewhere, fresh data suggests.

The country's trade balance returned to surplus in April — following revised data that put March into deficit — despite a 23.4 per cent plunge in exports to the European Union, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

The fresh numbers suggest the Canadian recovery may not be put at serious risk from Europe's unfolding debt crisis.

"As long as we avoid a real blow out where it sparks concerns about European banks and the exposure that global banks have, it's a modest effect on Canada," said Derek Holt, vice-president of economics with Scotia Capital.

"Our wagon is still hitched to the U.S. in term of trade exposure."

Mission accomplished

Blackhawks reach goal set way back in training camp

From the first day of training camp nine months ago, the Chicago Blackhawks felt the expectations. They were everywhere, generated by championship-hungry fans and by the players themselves.

"We want to win the Stanley Cup. I think that's what a lot of the guys are thinking," Patrick Kane said after that first practice on a steamy September day.

The Blackhawks, led by the 21-year-old Kane and their 22-year-old captain Jonathan Toews, made it happen.

Now they will parade with their teammates Friday through a city that is giddy because the Blackhawks have seized the Cup for the first time since 1961.

When Kane was taken with the first pick in the draft three years ago, it started the Blackhawks on their way to a remarkable rebirth. A year earlier they had chosen Toews in the first round and now they have become the faces of the franchise both on and off the ice.

At such a young age, they have won the Cup and done so in a short amount of time, accomplishing what some never do throughout their careers.

United Center, which four years ago was half-empty, now rocks and the Blackhawks are one of the hottest tickets in town, a re-emergence that can be attributed to the efforts of owner Rocky Wirtz and his president John McDonough, who was hired away from the Chicago Cubs.

Kane finally ended the championship drought — the longest active one in the NHL — with a game-winning goal in overtime against the Flyers.

What an end to a whirlwind year for both Kane and Toews, who signed lucrative contract extensions with the Blackhawks in December — five-year deals worth $31.5 million US each.

Kane had a difficult summer. In his hometown of Buffalo, he and his cousin were arrested following an altercation with a cab driver.

"It didn't start off very good back in August. But I think sometimes you go through those kind of things as a young kid," Kane said.

"You can really learn from them and try to better yourself as a person and as an athlete, too."

Not noted for his shyness, Dana White didn't hesitate to make a brash prediction about what's in store for Vancouver fans at Saturday's UFC 115.

"It's the most exciting live sporting even you will ever see," the UFC president told a news conference Thursday. "Even more exciting than hockey."

More exciting than hockey? Those could be fighting words.

"We're already bigger than hockey," chuckled White, who showed up wearing an NHL Vancouver Canucks sweatshirt. "I made an even bolder prediction than that. I said it (UFC) would be even bigger than soccer.

"I think people here are going to love hockey and love the UFC. It's not like you have to chose one or the other. I think there are a lot of hockey fans who are MMA fans. It's never a competition."

The fight, at GM Place, will be UFC's first foray into Vancouver. White hopes to erase the stigma some people still have about mixed martial arts events.

"You can bring your kids," he said. "There is not going to be anything crazy happening.

"There is not going to be any rioting. Nobody is going to get hurt."

The card will feature Chuck (The Iceman) Liddell against Rich (Ace) Franklin in the main event.

Liddell, the former world light heavyweight champion who also has appeared on Dancing With The Stars, is looking to put his career back on track. He's lost four of his last five fights, three by knockout.

Rogers Centre to get 2012 Grey Cup: Source

CFL A CFL source requesting anonymity said Thursday the league will stage the 2012 Grey Cup at the Rogers Centre in Toronto. The CFL has scheduled a news conference for Friday afternoon to make a Grey Cup announcement.

Toronto last hosted the Grey Cup in 2007 when the Saskatchewan Roughriders defeated the Winnipeg Blue Bombers. That marked the first CFL championship game at Rogers Centre since 1992.

The move is hardly surprising. The prevailing talk has been that the CFL would stage the 2012 Grey Cup in Toronto to celebrate the game's 100th anniversary in its biggest market.

The source also said the CFL will unveil former Canadian Olympic Committee chief executive officer Chris Rudge as its 2012 Grey Cup chairman.

Rudge is a friend of Toronto Argonauts and B.C. Lions owner David Braley.

Brett Cecil won his fifth consecutive start, Alex Gonzalez homered and drove in two runs and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Tampa Bay Rays 3-2 Thursday night.

Cecil (7-2) allowed one run and three hits over 6⅔ innings. The left-hander has given up six earned runs in 36⅓ innings over that stretch.

The Blue Jays had been outscored 19-1 in losing the first two games of the three-game series.

Carlos Pena hit his 129th homer with Tampa Bay, which set a franchise record. The Rays have won six of nine against Toronto this season.

Tampa Bay all-star left-fielder Carl Crawford was out of the starting lineup for the second time in the past three games for what Rays manager Joe Maddon called "preventative maintenance." Crawford did pinch run and steal second in the ninth.

Toronto Blue Jays Brett Cecil throws a pitch against the Tampa Bay Rays Thursday in St. Petersburg, Fla.

"There's nothing wrong," Maddon said. "We just want to get him off his feet, especially on the (artificial) turf. He's always had trouble with this particular field."

Maddon said Crawford will play in all three games of an interleague series with Florida that starts Friday.

Kevin Gregg, who allowed a solo homer to Sean Rodriguez, pitched the ninth to record his 15th save.

Rays right-hander Wade Davis (5-6) gave up three runs and seven hits in seven-plus innings.

Gonzalez put the Blue Jays up 1-0 on a second-inning homer. The Blue Jays, who lead the majors with 98 homers, had not gone deep in the previous 20 innings. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Caps owner adds NBA's Wizards to his collection

Cavaliers' coaching candidate travels to Cleveland

BASKETBALL Tom Izzo has flirted with the NBA before. He may finally be ready to commit.

Michigan State's highly respected coach visited the Cleveland Cavaliers Thursday to get a first-hand inspection of a franchise undergoing a major makeover as it prepares to try to re-sign LeBron James, the free-agent-of-a-generation.

After flying to Cleveland in one of Cavs owner Dan Gilbert's jets, Izzo spent hours visiting with members of the front office and touring the team's facilities.

Izzo, who has been courted by pro teams in the past, is believed to be mulling a contract worth up to $6 million US per season from the Cavaliers, who fired Mike Brown last month after they lost in the second round of the playoffs to Boston despite having the league's best regular-season record for the second straight year.

It is not known if Izzo gave the Cavs a decision or a timetable for one.

If Izzo and Cleveland do not come to terms, the team could turn its attention to former New Orleans and New Jersey coach Byron Scott, whose resumé would make him attractive. Scott won three NBA titles as a player and has experience in coaching such stars as Jason Kidd and Chris Paul. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Replay rules affect finals

The NBA's expansion of instant replay to include out-of-bounds calls in the final minutes has played a role in these NBA finals, where the Los Angeles Lakers brought a 2-1 lead over the Boston Celtics into Game 4 Thursday night.

The referees went to the monitor three times near the end of Game 3, three chances for better looks at the kinds of close calls that can swing series.

"Certainly the replay system worked in terms of being able to review some of our most crucial possessions at the end of the game," said Stu Jackson, the league's executive vice-president of basketball operations.

Yet, one of those reviews opened the debate about whether the replay system needed further tweaking. The NBA already has had those discussions.

"We're going to keep striving to balance the desire and need to get it right with the fact that we are a two-hour game heading to four if we have too much replay," commissioner David Stern said.

But the league already believes this: A little more than a week after baseball faced cries to add more review after an incorrect call cost Detroit pitcher Armando Galarraga a perfect game, instant replay is the way to go.

The NBA instituted instant replay before the start of the 2002-03 season, originally to review period-ending baskets and fouls, and a number of triggers have since been added.

Replay is used for officials to confirm if a flagrant foul warranted an ejection, or if players left the bench during a fight. Referees can now go to the monitor to see if shots or fouls came beyond the three-point arc, whether they beat the shot clock, or if there was a clock malfunction.

The system was expanded this season to out-of-bounds possessions in the last two minutes of regulation or overtime. That's the one that came into play three times in the final 1:29 Tuesday. The first two calls were overturned, the third was confirmed.

Lakers coach Phil Jackson said that's a problem with the replay system.

"Those are the things that we questioned immediately when they brought in the rule," Jackson said. "You're going to see a lot of things happening now on this type of thing where if it's a three-point play, a guy might have stepped out of bounds and no one saw it, and he comes back in. Now you're looking at is it a three-point shot or not, and you miss the fact that he stepped out of bounds. What are you going to do to rectify the fact the officials missed a call?"

For now, nothing.

Burning questions

CFLExtraPoints

Dan Toth

metronews.ca/sports

CFL training camps kick off a six-month adventure for the eight-team circuit, when jobs are won and lost, dreams dashed and careers launched en route to the Grey Cup game. Here are the burning questions each club will have to answer in 2010:

TORONTO ARGONAUTS:

The focus in Toronto is squarely on the quarterback, or more specifically, the lack of one. The Argos, under new head coach Jim Barker, released Kerry Joseph and Cody Pickett, leaving relative unknowns Dalton Bell, Cleo Lemon and Ken Dorsey to fight for the starting job.

HAMILTON TIGER-CATS:

The Tiger-Cats smashed their piggy bank in the off-season to sign free-agent placekicker Sandro DeAngelis, a three-time all-star in Calgary. He's one of the most reliable kickers in CFL history, but will the combination of a hefty contract and home-province pressure be too much for the Niagara Falls native to handle?

MONTREAL ALOUETTES:

The Alouettes were the CFL's best team in 2009, setting a club record for wins in a season and claiming the Grey Cup. Will 2010 be the year veteran QB Anthony Calvillo, who turns 38 this season, finally begins to show his age on a team that has yet to develop a solid backup?

WINNIPEG BLUE BOMBERS:

The Bombers have two new QBs in Buck Pierce and Steven Jyles fighting for the starting role. Pierce might have the edge, but a history of concussions will have Bomber fans wondering if he can provide a long-term solution in Winnipeg.

CALGARY STAMPEDERS:

The Stamps witnessed several off-season departures, leaving some interesting battles along the offensive line. Jeff Pilon and Jesse Newman retired while Dimitri Tsoumpas jumped ship for the NFL. Can the Stamps find three new starters to protect QB Henry Burris?

SASKATCHEWAN ROUGHRIDERS:

Former Riders GM Eric Tillman is legendary for finding first-rate talent to replace injured stars. Will his successor, GM Brendan Taman, be on the hot seat to replace defensive linemen Stevie Baggs and John Chick, lost to the NFL, and a reliable backup QB?

B.C. LIONS:

Former CFL MVP Casey Printers will once again take over the No. 1 QB job in Vancouver ahead of Jarious Jackson. Only question is, after stints in the NFL and Hamilton, can Printers recapture the magic of 2004 when he passed for more than 5,000 yards with the Leos?

EDMONTON ESKIMOS:

The Eskimos fielded the CFL's most porous pass defence last season, forcing the team to revamp its secondary. Will the Esks adapt to those multiple changes to defend against the pass-happy offences of the West Division?

Dan Toth has been covering the CFL for more than a decade and is a lifelong fan of Canadian football.

FIFA World Cup

EDITOR: DON.MCHOULL@METRONEWS.CA

Welcome the greatest show on Earth

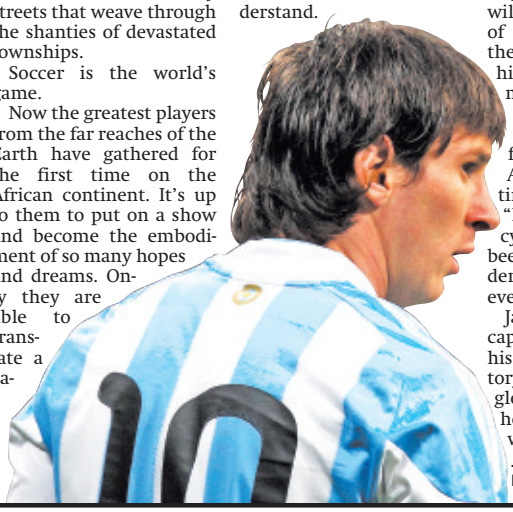
The World Cup stands alone. There is no need to qualify the title of this tournament with FIFA, (the governing body of international soccer), or to identify what sport we're talking about in the first place.

We all get it.

Having been to South Africa, I can assure you that regardless of circumstance, everyone plays. The rich and the poor, boys and girls, Zulu and Xhosa — they all chase the globe-like ball on lush green fields or in dusty streets that weave through the shanties of devastated townships.

Soccer is the world's game.

Now the greatest players from the far reaches of the Earth have gathered for the first time on the African continent. It's up to them to put on a show and become the embodiment of so many hopes and dreams. Only they are able to translate a cacophony of dialects into a common language that all of us can understand.



Lionel Messi

For a time, Wayne Rooney will be the lion of England, and Argentina will rely on the brilliance of Lionel Messi to write the next chapter in the history of that football-mad nation.

It's all about the players and how they reflect the fans.

As I watch our two distinguished analysts do "kick about" on the fancy television set that's been built at the CBC, I understand the World Cup is everything.

Jason de Vos, the former captain of Canada, took his team to a Gold Cup victory in 2000. He still juggles the ball deftly but he's feeling an overwhelming emotion.

"The world will be watching and in a multicultural country like Canada there are not one but 32 teams to mirror our fortunes."

"Envy," de Vos says. "I would love to be in their shoes. That's what it's all about — to pull on your country's jersey and compete at the World Cup. That's why I started playing as a seven-year-old. Unfortunately, I never got that chance."

But John Collins did. The smallish striker for Scotland scored against Brazil at the 1998 World Cup in France.

"You know you are representing your country," Collins says in a thick brogue.

"You know the whole nation is watching on television. Life comes to a standstill."

The world will be watching and in a multicultural country like Canada there are not one but 32 teams to mirror our fortunes.

The G20 summit can't come close to this.

The World Cup is, hands down, the greatest show on Earth.

Gemini Award winner and author Scott Russell is the Host of CBC Sports Weekend seen Saturday afternoons. A 20-year CBC Sports veteran, he has covered a variety of professional and amateur sports including nine Olympic games and numerous world championships.

FIFA World Cup

Sports in brief

AUSTRALIA Australia pulled out of the race to host the 2018 World Cup Thursday and will instead focus on the 2022 tournament. The announcement by FIFA and the Football Federation Australia leaves the United States running against four European bids — Belgium-Netherlands, England, Russia and Spain-Portugal — for the 2018 tournament.

ITALY Italy midfielder Andrea Pirlo has had another medical test on his injured left calf and the results appear positive. Team physician Enrico Castellacci described the outcome of Thursday's MRI as "encouraging."

TICKETS World Cup ticket sales have hit 97 per cent and organizers are expecting to have sold more than 98 per cent of the more than three million tickets by the end of the tournament. FIFA released figures two days ahead of the opening World Cup match showing that 135,000 of the 3.01 million tickets available for purchase remained unsold.

PREDICTION Patrick Vieira, a World Cup winner with France in 1998, thinks an African team could lift the trophy this year. Vieira, who was born in Senegal, said Thursday that Ivory Coast and Cameroon were the most likely contenders to be Africa's first World Cup winners, as many of their players play at some of Europe's leading clubs.

ALGERIA Algeria coach Rabah Saadane has dropped captain Yazid Mansouri for the team's World Cup opener against Slovenia Sunday because his form is not good enough.

All in a name

MATTHEW ROMANADA
Metro Canada

There are 32 countries competing in the World Cup, but there are more than 250 countries in the world. That means millions of people will have to figure out another way to choose their team.

For many Canadians, it's easy to adopt another nation for the next 30 days because of our diverse heritage. Some may have parents that came from England, or immigrated from Nigeria, while others will root for Argentina because of the brilliant Lionel Messi. For those of us still undecided, why not look to the team's nicknames for inspiration?

The nicknames for all the World Cup participants can be split into four groups: Colours; animals; historical/national roots; and boring. The latter category will be ignored for obvious reasons.

Colours

Most of the colour-based nicknames are pretty lame, but a few stand out. The top of the crop in this category are Mexico (El Tri — the three-coloured), Netherlands (Oranje) and Italy (Azzurri — azure blue). The worst, for politically correct reasons, has to be New Zealand (All Whites).

Historical/National Roots:

There's a real mixed bag here. Japan (Samurai Blue) and South Korea (Taeguk Warriors) represent Asia well. The U.S., which goes by either The Yanks or The Stars and Stripes, disappoints with a lack of creativity. Denmark (Olsen's Eleven) and Honduras (Los Catrachos) are worthy of further investigation.

Animals:

This is where the good stuff is and the host continent Africa really shines. Algeria (Desert Foxes), Cote d'Ivoire (Elephants), Nigeria (Super Eagles) are all solid contenders, but Cameroon (Indomitable Lions) stands out. A match between it and England (The Three Lions) would be fun. The other interesting teams in this category are Australia (Socceroos) and Serbia (White Eagles).

I'm going to go with Spain (La Furia Roja — The Red Fury), which just rolls off the tongue. Plus my last name is Spanish — even if I'm only ⅛ Spanish myself — and it never hurts to back a contender.

In case you are wondering, Canada's most used nickname is Les Rouges (The Reds).

Perhaps if we came up with a better nickname we could inspire our troops to qualify for the next World Cup.

Threequel keeps the standards high, Pixar mascot says

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Over the past 15 years, Pixar has produced 11 films, starting with 1995's Toy Story. And John Ratzenberger has lent his voice for all of them.

The aptly dubbed Pixar mascot, Ratzenberger is back for Toy Story 3, reprising his role as Hamm the Piggy Bank.

"For me it's proof that God exists," Ratzenberger tells Metro about his tenure with the animation studio. "Because it's beyond my thinking of how this happened."

While the folks at Pixar are obviously fans of Ratzenberger, the actor insists the feeling is mutual.

"The reason that Pixar is so good is because the standard started out extremely high and it stayed there," he explains.

"They didn't get lazy or get full of themselves or say, 'Let's just kick this one out because we can.' They put the same amount of energy and craft into every one of their films. So they keep the standard high, and that's why it's so wonderful working with them."

Toy Story 3 opens next week

Still most recognizable for his work as postal worker and barfly Cliff Clavin on Cheers, Ratzenberger has kept busy beyond his Pixar work since the sitcom ended in 1993. A lot of that work, it turns out, has been for various charities and foundations.

"I'm not much for sitting around watching sports on the weekend, watching TV," he explains. "But if I see something that needs fixing, I like to see what I can do to help out. It goes back to, you know, if someone's barn burned down, the neighbours got together and helped rebuild it. I'm just one of those neighbours who shows up with the hammers and nails."

Over the past few years, Ratzenberger has become just as well known for his political outspokenness, even going so far as to suggest he'd run for Senate in his home state of Connecticut in 2012. While he claims those plans are currently on hold — "There's too much on my plate," he says — that doesn't mean he doesn't have a thing or two to say about the state of government.

"Whether it's Republican or Democrat, we're running out of people with common sense because everybody was told they needed to go to college and nobody ever got a real job," he says.

A-Team plan doesn't quite come together

The A-Team
Director: Joe Carnahan
Stars: Liam Neeson, Bradley Cooper, Jessica Biel
Classification: PG
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

REVIEW As catchphrases go, "I love it when a plan comes together" is a particular 1980s standout.

But fans of the TV series The A-Team might find the new big-screen adaptation a little frustrating. While Hannibal (Liam Neeson, stepping into George Peppard's humidor) talks incessantly about plans and the importance of having them and executing them, he never actually utters the famous line.

And it's not like he doesn't have the opportunity, as this action movie has an overabundance of talk. It's too much plan, and not enough coming together. Or as Mr. T would say, "Quit your jibber jabber!"

Along with Neeson's Hannibal, the A-Team gets a decent upgrade with its casting. The 21st century versions of Face (Bradley Cooper), Murdoch (Sharlto Copley) and B.A. Baracus (Quinton "Rampage" Jackson) work well, with Jackson the weakest link — and somehow not very threatening, considering his Ultimate Fighting Championship background. Copley, though, is a standout, diving into the craziness of Murdoch with vigour.

As is fitting with a big, loud summer movie, the action sequences are spectacular, including a truck heist on the streets of Baghdad and a massive stunt involving a tank, a parachute and the fast-approaching ground.

These set-pieces are where the film really comes alive. It's just that there's too much talking between them. And a lot of that talk is recapping plot points or flashing back to earlier scenes, a sign the filmmakers don't trust their audience to keep up.

Artist as a young man

The Socalled Movie

Director: Gary Beitel
Classification: STC
Rating:

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

Hot Docs favourite The Socalled Movie charts the career of Montreal-based singer/rapper Josh Dolgin

Given the versatility of the Montreal-based singer/rapper/musical polymath Josh "Socalled" Dolgin, it's appropriate that a documentary about his life and art doesn't follow a straight line.

A crowd-pleasing hit at this year's Hot Docs festival, The Socalled Movie approaches its subject from a variety of different angles, splitting its running time into 18 segments that, taken together, detail how a lonely kid from rural Quebec developed into a vanguard artist blending hip-hop and klezmer rhythms for an appreciative international audience.

Director Gary Beitel — Dolgin's former filmmaking instructor at McGill — has cited Francois Girard's Thirty-Two Short Films About Glenn Gould as a formal influence, but that was a film about an authentic genius, rather than a burgeoning young talent.

Not that Dolgin is straining for gravitas here: for all his professional confidence — necessary when you're a nerdy looking dude dropping multi-lingual rhymes in nightclubs — the musician radiates modesty in the interview segments.

He speaks openly about the contradictions of being an atheistic, openly gay Jewish man in total thrall to Yiddish culture, and also about the cultivation of his cosmopolitan musical aesthetic.

The performance footage, gleaned from concerts from around the world, is mostly engaging, but the highlight is a segment detailing the creation and execution of the innovative, eye-popping music video for the catchy single You Are Never Alone.

Thriller so bad that it's good

Birdemic

Director: James Nguyen
Classification: STC
Rating:

CHRIS ALEXANDER
for Metro Canada

The most impactful works of art are those that reach sublime heights; those that are clearly the product of master craftsmen or single minded auteurs, all with a firm grasp of their respective mediums. And then there's those on the opposite end of that creative spectrum.

That 's where you'll find Birdemic: Shock and Terror, splattering like pigeon poop onto select Toronto screens today with a warm, icky gush of outrageous ineptitude that makes Plan Nine from Outer Space seem like The Godfather by comparison.

This dubious excuse for a "movie" is perhaps the single stupidest collection of filmed images stapled together in the history of cinema; an operatic offering of endless lousiness that will have you doubled over in (unintentional) laughter and reeling in disbelief. In other words, it's awesome.

Writer/producer/director James Nguyen's insipid epic charts the not-so thrilling adventures of a pair of young lovers who find themselves smack dab in the middle of feathered hell.

Seems hordes (flocks?) of squawking lethal eagles have been driven cuckoo by global warming and other such end of days environmental shenanigans and have become kamikaze suicide bombers.

From the cheap, Gauntlet-esque '80s arcade game caliber FX, to the absurd performances and the insane script, every single inch of Birdemic is wrong. But if you check out the flick with a few friends, preferably after a few drinks, then baby, this dirty bird is a right-on good time.

Young Smith kicks it up

The Karate Kid

Director: Harald Zwart
Stars: Jaden Smith, Jackie Chan
Classification: PG
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

RICHARD CROUSE

To anyone alive in the 1980s, the Karate Kid legend is a familiar one. In this reboot, Jaden Smith (son of Will and Jada) stars in the role Ralph Macchio made a Reagan era icon.

The story's been freshened by a move to Beijing but the filmmakers wisely kept the underdog coming-of-age tale front and centre.

Smith plays Dre, a cocky 12-year-old recession victim. "There's nothing left for us in Detroit," says his mother (Taraji P. Henson) as they pack up and move so she can take a job at a Beijing car factory. There Dre is an outsider, experiencing clashes, both cultural and personal.

Falling for a pretty classmate (Wenwen Han) he runs afoul of schoolyard bully Cheng (Zhenwei Wang) who opens up a 40-ounce can of Bruce Lee on the newcomer. Alone and bruised Dre befriends maintenance man and kung fu master Mr. Han (Jackie Chan) who becomes the Yoda to Dre's Jedi. Han educates his pupil on the discipline of kung fu — there's no actual karate in the movie! — while Dre teaches his master a thing or two about real courage.

Smith is the film's centerpiece. He's clearly still a novice, but has inherited the best bits of his mother and father's collective gene pools (he got his mother's ears! Yay!) and has charisma to burn. He's not going to win an Academy Award for this one, but he capably carries a great deal of the movie on his 12-year-old back. He's ably assisted by co-star Jackie Chan, who after the recent, and truly awful, The Spy Next Door brings warmth and personality to Mr. Han.

Get Him to the Greek

⊕⊕⊕½

REVIEW Just as comedy sage Judd Apatow made stars out of unlikely actors Seth Rogen and Jason Segel with respective hits, Get Him to the Greek aims to turn Russell Brand and plumpy Jonah Hill into Hollywood's latest A-listers. And it may just do it. A spin-off to the 2008 Apatow-produced hit Forgetting Sarah Marshall, this tale about a record executive hopeful named Aaron (Hill) and his lascivious, out-of-control rock 'n' roll charge (Brand, reviving Marshall's Aldous Snow character) anchors gross-out gags by giving the bedlam a heart. .

Steve Gow/for Metro Canada

Shrek Forever After

⊕⊕⊕½

REVIEW The latest — and supposedly last — Shrek film makes a valiant effort of recapturing the tone and spirit of the original Shrek, with more wisecre takes on fairy tale tropes and fewer obnoxious pop culture references. Tossing on a loose-fitting It's a Wonderful Life coat, the film picks up with Shrek (Mike Myers), Fiona (Cameron Diaz) and company enjoying their "happily ever after," although the ogre himself isn't so happy.

Ned Ehrbar/Metro World News

Splice

REVIEW Drawing obvious thematic and stylistic comparisons to the work of Canadian body horror icon David Cronenberg, fellow Canuck Vincenzo Natali's Splice is a triumph of psychosexual science fiction. Adrien Brody and Sarah Polley play lover geneticists who decide to blend human and animal genes for kicks and curiosity. The resulting beastie is Dren, a tadpole-by-way of H.R Giger-esque female that becomes their surrogate child and potentially career derailing secret.

Refreshing take

Agora

Director: Alejandro Amenabar
Stars: Rachel Weisz, Max Minghella
Classification: STC
Rating:

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

Rachel Weisz stars in Alejandro Amenabar's Agora.

Alejandro Amenabar's Agora plays as a curious antidote to the big-budget Christian epics like The Ten Commandments and Ben Hur that used to clog up cinemas.

Here is a Roman epic with all the grand vistas and lush production values of those films of the past, but rather than presenting an idealistic tale of Christianity triumphing over heathens, this is a story from the perspective of the skeptics.

The Christians are the villains in this sword 'n' sandals flick and while that's inevitably going to cut down on the audience appeal, it offers a refreshing take on a dead genre.

The film centres on the famed mathematician and philosopher Hypatia as she starts to uncover some important modern theories about the universe (such as the revelation that the earth revolves around the sun).

Unfortunately, she develops her theories during the dying days of the Roman Empire and her native city of Alexandria (along with its extraordinary library) are swiftly destroyed by rioting Christian zealots. It is an intriguing allegory for contemporary times, examining how logic and rational thinking can be destroyed by blind faith and religion.

Agora made the rounds at film festivals last year in a much longer and difficult to decipher version.

It was ignored at the time, but now that director Alejandro Amenabar (The Others) has cut down his film significantly, it plays much better.

At times, scenes feel truncated with a few awkward narrative gaps, but it's worth it as the movie is no longer weighed down with excessive discussion and the message is crystal clear.

"★★★★. EXHILARATING.
A HUGELY ENJOYABLE KNOCKOUT OF A MOVIE. YOU'LL STAND UP AND CHEER."

Producers of this weekend's 1980s reboot, The Karate Kid with Jaden Smith, must be hoping for a little of the Ralph Macchio "wax on" magic to rub off on their film. The original movie, a 1984 crowd pleaser that made Macchio an underdog icon, grossed $90.8 million and spawned three sequels, all of which made money until the last one, sans Macchio, made only a tenth of the first.

The original series made Macchio and Pat Morita superstars but what happened to them and their Karate Kid alumni once the final tournament was over?

Macchio's years as a box office draw extended past Karate Kid III, but just barely. After parts in Crossroads and My Cousin Vinny he couldn't make the transition into adult roles. Luckily he avoided the post fame pitfalls of other '80s kid actors like the Coreys but despite steady gigs in low budget film and episodic television he hasn't been able to shake the spectre of his most famous character.

"'Wax on, wax off,'" he says. "Every week someone yells out the phrase as if they'd just come up with the idea, thinking, 'Whoa, isn't that genius? Hey Ralph, wax on, wax off!'"

Macchio's replacement in the franchise fared slightly better — like two Oscars better. In an attempt to inject some new blood into the series — "Who says the good guy has to be a guy?" read the advertising tagline — the twenty-year-old Hilary Swank beat out hundreds of other girls to don Macchio's gi in The Next Karate Kid. It was a flop critically —"The franchise is still kicking, but not very high," wrote Variety — and commercially but only slowed her career momentum momentarily. By 1996 she was working regularly and by 1999 it was Oscar time.

The only actor to appear in all four of the original movies was Pat Morita, who became the first American-born Asian actor nominated for an Oscar for his performance as sensei Miyagi in the first film.

It's impossible to imagine the films without him but he nearly didn't get the part. Producer Jerry Weintraub initially rejected Morita, claiming he was too well known as Arnold on Happy Days.

Determined to win the role Morita grew a beard, mimicked his Uncle's Japanese accent and screen tested. "When Jerry saw it, he said, 'That's what I want — a goddamn actor,' not realizing it was Pat," said the late actor's wife Evelyn.

Richard Crouse's Movie Show can be seen every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the E! Channel; mrchaos33@hotmail.com.

Music

Miserable sales signal end of CDs

SoundCheck

Here's a prediction: Years from now, historians will point to the late spring of 2010 as the time when physical sales of music entered the terminal stage of its illness. Here's why.

Album sales collapsed catastrophically in May. For the week ending May 30, only 4,984,000 albums were sold in all of America. That's new releases AND catalogue titles sold by everyone from Wal-Mart on down. It's estimated that sales haven't sucked this much since sometime in the 1970s. Compare that to the good ol' days of December 2000 when 45.4 million albums moved out of stores in a single week.

It's been a perfect storm, really. A lack of major releases combined with increasing interest in a la carte digital sales (i.e. a preference to buy individual songs rather than full albums) has created a negative vector. Add in the ever-present boogieman of illegal downloading and we have fewer and fewer people buying music on CD. Even the reborn vinyl craze can't help.

And although we may see seasonal spikes in physical album sales for a few years, there are other things conspiring to kill off the CD.

Improved streaming services to mobile devices: With the introduction of multi-tasking in version 4.0 of the iPhone/iPad software this week, it'll soon be possible to listen to services like Pandora (well, for Americans, anyway) or radio tuner apps (at least we can do that) in the background while doing something else.

Online services that allow you to store music on your device: Spotify, Slacker and the new Rdio (brought to you by the same people who gave us Skype and Kazaa) now allow subscribers to cache music. That means users can listen to songs without having to connect to the Internet. Too bad Canadians are still being shut out of this technology.

Music consumption habits of young people: There's an entire generation that has built their media lives around computers, MP3 players and smart phones. Technology makes it possible for them to access virtually any song anytime they want it from wherever they are. Why do they need to physically possess the music?

New media centres in automobiles: If you want to see the future of your dashboard, look at the A/V options being offered in the 2011 Audi A8. Wow.

The times, they are a-changin'.

Universal Music Canada reports that Taio Cruz has already sold more than 160,000 copies of Rokstarr here in Canada.

Breakthrough year

Taio Cruz's new album includes No. 1 hit Break Your Heart

NICK KREWEN
for Metro Canada

Nobody can deny that with his global chart-topping dance pop smash Break Your Heart, the invigorating new single Dynamite and a hot selling album with Rokstarr, Taio Cruz is enjoying a breakout year.

But the London, U.K.,-based Cruz — born Adetayo Ayowale Onile-Ere — comes by much of his production pedigree from America. In his early 20s, he apprenticed with producers Chris "Tricky" Stewart (Rihanna, Beyoncé, Britney) and Rich Harrison (Beyoncé, Alicia Keys) in Atlanta.

"I'm an information sponge — I like to learn from people who know a lot more than I do, and then try to apply it to what it is that I do," Cruz told Metro during a promotional stop in Toronto this week. "I was very excited to work with Tricky and all those guys because they're amazing and have made so many hit records. I wanted to learn production tips and songwriting techniques and other bits and pieces. I honed my skills."

Cruz, 27, whom Universal Music Canada reports has sold more than 160,000 copies of Rokstarr here, says his U.K. musical pals had some interesting ideas about U.S. pop music.

"Everyone had this idea that American music used some sort of magic dust to make it sound so good," he chuckles. "Some of my friends thought it was the current, because the electricity standard is different in America and it affects the sound waves.

"I learned that the reason the music sounds so good is that they use the best of everything. They're not afraid to spend money."

Cruz almost scored another bonus working with Tricky: He was there when Terius "The Dream" Nash wrote Rihanna's No. 1 smash Umbrella and actually recorded one of the song's very first demos.

"I thought it was an amazing song," Cruz recalls. "I really wanted to release it, but as you do as a songwriter, you send it out to various people and loads of different artists, and Jay-Z loved it for Rihanna. The rest is history."

Besides his distinctive synthesized Euro pop sound, Taio Cruz is trying to make history of his own, as Rokstarr isn't only the name of his sophomore album, but his own line of hip sunglasses. Cruz has plans to expand Rokstarr shortly into offering watches, fragrance and luggage.

"I'd love for the Rokstarr empire to be as big as Apple one day," says Cruz. "Steve Jobs and Apple — they're my inspiration."

Welcome to winter

Teenage Fanclub frontman adapts to life in Canada

CAM LINDSAY
for Metro Canada

Earlier this year, Norman Blake learned what it meant to be Canadian with a snow shovel in his hand and a toque on his head.

Having relocated from Glasgow to Kitchener-Waterloo with his Canadian wife this past winter, the Teenage Fanclub vocalist/guitarist quickly learned what it takes to live in Southern Ontario.

"The first couple of weeks we had some heavy snowfall," he remembers over the phone from his former home. "I was terrified when I found out I had to go and clear the front yard and sidewalk. Of course, our house is on the corner so I had two sidewalks to clear. But once we got into the early part of summer and the barbecues were open I've been enjoying it much more!"

Shadows is the 10th album from Teenage Fanclub.

A 3000-mile transfer doesn't seem like the ideal situation for a band celebrating their third decade, but Blake says that the transition for him and the other Glasgow-based Fannies — primarily original members and co-songwriters Gerard Love and Raymond McGinley — has been smooth so far.

"With the advent of the Internet it's pretty easy to stay in touch," says Blake. "And you can get cheap flights now, so if you don't mind flying it's not a problem at all. I'm pretty happy to go back and forth."

That's a good thing, considering Blake will definitely be racking up some major Air Miles points with the release of Teenage Fanclub's new album Shadows. Their first since 2005's Man Made, album number ten may have taken a while to get to us, but like the previous nine, it's yet another example of the Fannies' superiority as warm melodicists.

A reaction to the limitations of recording Man Made in Chicago, Shadows was recorded in the U.K. where the band could "back the truck up to the studio and load in all sorts of different instruments. With this record there were lots and lots of overdubs and more harmonies — we really threw the kitchen sink at this one. It was just to make the experience different."

Blake says the gap between albums is simply because "the band has been working at that pace for the last decade. Hopefully, we'll get more prolific and make a few more records. For some reason Teenage Fanclub has gotten into this five-year cycle."

No matter how long it takes the band, they're definitely more focused than ever.

Music festivals spread the experience online

It's often joked that more people like to claim that they were at Woodstock in 1969 than were actually there.

For today's music mega-festivals, such boasting is entirely plausible.

The Bonnaroo Music & Arts Festival, which begins its ninth annual instalment Thursday evening in Manchester, Tenn., has — like many festivals — gradually let more of its experience seep out on the Web.

This year's festival, more than any earlier, need not require a cross-country road trip or four days of camping in the mud. Much of the music at Bonnaroo will filter out through live streaming on YouTube, audio webcasting on NPR and television coverage on Fuse.

A Web-minded vibe was set right from the start: This year's Bonnaroo lineup was announced through the individual websites, MySpace pages, Twitter feeds and Facebook pages of the performing acts. It took frantic Googling to uncover that the headliners would be Jay-Z, the Dave Matthews Band and Kings of Leon.

Nearly 100 acts, including Conan O'Brien's travelling comedy show, will be spread out over a multitude of stages and tents on the Tennessee farm. More than 70,000 fans are expected to attend the festival, which runs through Sunday.

But perhaps as many, or more, will watch Jay-Z, the National, Norah Jones and many others at YouTube.com/bonnaroo.

Thousands more might listen to the Dave Matthews Band, the Flaming Lips and others at NPR.org/music. And still more may catch up watching Live From Bonnaroo 2010 on Fuse.

"We are exploring all sorts of opportunities to reach out to fans not simply during the weekend of the festival, but all year long to communicate what the Bonnaroo experience is all about," says Ashley Capps, co-founder of Bonnaroo and president of AC Entertainment.

But the specialness of the in-person experience is the most important characteristic of Bonnaroo. It can be delicate balancing how much to open up festival gates to the Web, and how much to keep offline.

"How to do it is certainly an ongoing discussion," she says. "Not compromising the Bonnaroo experience ... is very important. But it's exciting to discuss and, certainly for people who have not yet gotten to attend the festival itself, to get a taste of what Bonnaroo is like."

Arcade Fire plays the Music Hall Friday and Saturday.

Arcade Fire fans eagerly await last-minute shows

CONCERTS Arcade Fire fans in Toronto are eagerly awaiting two hastily-announced shows in the city.

News of the concerts on Friday and Saturday night were teased at online during the week and finally announced Wednesday.

Fans who hoped to get in were told they'd have to line up on the day of the show to get a ticket. And the band was strictly restricting tickets to one per person.

The band is coming off playing two other surprise concerts in Montreal.

One was held at a tiny, intimate venue and the other was at a suburban parking lot, where thousands of fans showed up for the free show.

The band's new album, called The Suburbs,is due for release on Aug. 3.

Arcade Fire will return to Canada for some shows later this summer, including a gig on Olympic Island in Toronto on Aug. 14.

Susan Boyle to perform for Pope

The Roman Catholic Church in Scotland says singing sensation Susan Boyle will likely perform for Pope Benedict XVI at an open-air papal Mass in Glasgow's Bellahouston Park on Sept. 16 as part of the Pope's tour of Britain later this year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sexy supernatural drama True Blood is back

Sorry, Robert Pattinson — no one does sexy vampire quite like Stephen Moyer and Alexander Skarsgard, stars of the ultra-hot undead hit True Blood.

As the series starts its third season Sunday, our human heroine, Sookie Stackhouse (Anna Paquin), reluctantly turns to dangerous ally Eric (Skarsgard) to track down her kidnapped boyfriend, Bill (Moyer). It's a love triangle that's going to pit fans against each other over which bloodsucker best deserves Sookie's affections. The actors make the case for both Bill and Eric.

True Blood returns Sunday on HBO Canada

On vampires

MOYER: I think people are interested in (True Blood and Twilight) because ultimately, at the heart of both these stories, are two men who are very respectful of their women and who treat their women in a very old-fashioned way. It's courtliness, but they're men. I think that women like that about what vampires represent.

SKARSGARD: I know after reading the books (by Charlaine Harris, on which the series is based) that people really like the character. I don't read blogs about who he is or what people think I should do, because that would make me very insecure. I created the character and he's a part of me, so obviously I hope that people like him.

On his character's appeal

MOYER: It's the struggle that makes Bill interesting. He tries so hard to lead a decent life and not pray on innocents and to live in a moral universe, but he's still a vampire.

SKARSGARD: I think there's a tremendous amount of confidence in Eric because he has been around for a millennium. He knows that he's stronger than all the other vampires; he's not even challenged by them. He's not trying to prove himself 'cause he doesn't have to… Eric knows what he wants and he knows how to get it and there's no two ways about it.

His sexiest scene

MOYER: We have some crazy mud sex, and there's some very odd biting, blood sucking and blood swapping, but … it's a love story.

SKARSGARD: Fans of the books are going to want to see the Eric-Sookie dynamic take off. What makes (it) really interesting is when it's kind of forbidden love, and when there's conflict.

Glee book series being launched

According to TVGuide.com, hit TV series Glee is being turned into a series of books by Little Brown Books for Young Readers, which plans to release five books based on the series. METRO NEWS SERVICES

Sean Hayes to host Sunday's Tonies

When Sean Hayes hosts the Tony Awards Sunday, he'll join an exclusive club of performers who were nominated for prizes the same year they hosted.

Hayes, who is up for leading actor in a musical for his portrayal of Chuck Baxter in a revival of Promises, Promises doesn't seem too nervous with double-duty looming.

"Since I'm hosting, it kind of takes the pressure off," he says. "I'll be focusing on moving the evening along and making it fun and interesting."

Historically, the Tony-nominated host has fared pretty well. Hugh Jackman brought home a trophy for lead actor in a musical in 2004. And Nathan Lane won twice while at the helm: in 1996 and in 2001.

The Tony Awards air Sunday night

Hayes, who starred in TV's Will and Grace, will participate in the show's grand opening number with his Promises, Promises castmates before assuming emcee duties.

"I just want to provide an entertaining show," he said. While viewers can expect numbers from the Tony-nominated musicals and revivals, there will also be bits by the play nominees, including Denzel Washington and Viola Davis in a scene from Fences, and Liev Schreiber and Scarlett Johansson in A View From the Bridge.

There will also be performances by Green Day, and Lea Michele and Matthew Morrison from the Fox show, Glee.

"The great thing about awards shows is every year they're completely different," Hayes said.

A Tony Award would go nicely with Hayes' other honours: His portrayal of Jack McFarland on Will and Grace earned him four Screen Actors Guild Awards, an Emmy and six Emmy and seven Golden Globe nominations each.

Even though Tony has looked kindly upon its hosts, not all host-nominees have fared well. George C. Scott who starred in Death of a Salesman, lost the best actor prize in 1976, to John Wood.

More Quotes = More Savings On Car Insurance

Do You Love Shopping Around For The Best Deal?

If you're like most people, you'll often spend hours doing research, checking flyers, looking for specials, and running from one store to another to make sure you get the best possible price on everyday items such as; clothes, electronics, furniture, and even groceries. Nothing beats the thrill of knowing you paid less for something by shopping at one place instead of the other, right? It all adds up, how much time you invest and knowing where to go to get the best deals could end up saving you a bundle over the long run.

When Was The Last Time You Shopped for Car Insurance?

Sadly, even the smartest shoppers often don't spend nearly the same amount of time and energy shopping for car insurance, as they do for other items. After all, car insurance can be confusing, it never goes "on sale" (it only seems to get more expensive), it isn't much "fun" to buy, and it seems like no one place always has the best prices. But what if one place allowed you to compare rates from over 30 insurance companies? And what if it would only take about 10 minutes? And you could end up saving hundreds or even thousands of dollars? This is where InsuranceHotline.com can help by providing a free, unbiased rate comparison service that can connect you with a licensed insurance broker or agent who has the lowest rate available for your driving profile.

Don't Be Fooled By Others Offering To "Compare Quotes"

Unlike most of its competitors, InsuranceHotline.com does not sell insurance, is not a licensed broker or agent, and is not owned in whole or in part by an insurance company. This allows InsuranceHotline.com to be completely unbiased when providing insurance quotes and keeps its focus solely on finding the lowest insurance rates for consumers. By contrast, most websites offering to "compare insurance quotes" are owned by or affiliated with insurance brokers or agents and are therefore only capable of quoting rates from the limited number of insurance companies they represent, typically no more than 4 or 5.

Rate Comparison

Driving Record	Lowest Price	Highest Price	Savings
Clean Record	$958	$2,213	$1,255
1 Ticket	$1,018	$2,552	$1,534
1 Accident	$1,849	$3,753	$1,904

InsuranceHotline.com finds this rate for drivers – for FREE!

Metro's 7th Heaven: Metro taps what's hot right now

1 World Cup Soccer

SPORTS One of the most popular sports returns, and this time South Africa is hosting the world's best soccer, um, football players. The FIFA World Cup Trophy, which is handed out once every four years, is one of the most desired in sports.

2 The Bearded Gentleman

BOOKS With summer vacations here, why not cut back on the shaving and learn to style your facial hair? This book provides tips on how to avoid some of the nasties — like in-grown hairs — and how to achieve a groomed look if you do decide to sprout some whiskers.

3 Youth in Revolt

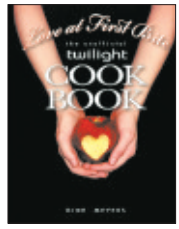
DVD Everyone's favourite Canadian actor, Michael Cera, hits the video store shelves with Youth in Revolt on Tuesday. Cera plays Nick Twisp, who creates an alter ego to help him win over the ladies.

4 Lady Gaga's Alejandro

MUSIC Launched at noon last Tuesday, Gaga's newest video became the top trending topic in Canada — if not the world. There was so much Twittering about the video — it sounds like a cross between Ace of Bass and Madonna, with a futuristic Vogue look — it crashed the website. Visit metronews.ca/columns to see it.

5 Love at First Bite

COOKING Now you can eat like the characters in the hit book and movie series — well, at least the ones who do eat. This unofficial Twilight cookbook offers easy, medium and hard skill level recipes so cooks of all ages can create gastronomical creations like Harry's Famous Fish Fry, Wolf Pack Waffles and Edward's Cornflake Chicken



6 Skinny Cargo

FASHION Tired of the skinny jean trends? Then you're in luck — now it's skinny cargo. Instead of having to worry about two pockets adding bulk to your frame, now there are multiple pockets to contend with. Luckily, this lightweight fabric will offer a cool alternative to that hefty denim. For a cool breeze, unzip the pant leg for some breathing room.

7 Morrissey, Soothsayer?

POP CULTURE Did the former Smith's member predict the death of Princess Diana? Well, one person with a lot of time on his hands thinks so. This YouTube video lays out the interesting connection between the singer, the princess and music. Is it true? Who knows. Visit metronews.ca/columns to see it.

Take a trip to Luminato's Rainbow City

It may be full of G20 protesters in a few weeks, but starting on Wednesday, Queen's Park will be transformed into Rainbow City; a cityscape of inflatable buildings, bounce houses and colourful displays.

The city is being erected as part of Luminato, Toronto Festival of Arts and Creativity, which takes place until Sunday, June 20. The arts collective FriendsWithYou created the city, and admission is free to the public.

Metro recently spoke to the colourful King of Rainbow City — who will visit the streets of the Toronto to invite people to see his city — to find out more about this place where anything is possible.

Q What is rainbow city?

A It's the most magical place in the universe, where everything is colourful and happy. I was born from a star and have travelled the universe to dance and play with everyone in the world. I travel from place to place growing my magical and colorful city for people to come and join me.

Q What will people find in rainbow city?

A Happiness! Adventure! Wishes come true! Once you enter, you become a part of Rainbow City and all your friends will join you in the fun. We expect all visitors to be coated in a candy swirl smile from that moment on.

Q Why is having fun important?

A What else is there to do? I make sure that everyday I find time to play.

Q What are some of the perks of being the king?

A Dancing all day and playing forever! I get to always make new friends, one by one. I love to make people smile and dance and I want to turn everything into rainbows — including people.

Q What is your job as king

A I love to play with everyone, and I love to make everything beautiful with all of my friends. I never looked at this birthright, but as a job. I just give my love and energy to the world and keep on dancing.

Q Are you related to the Wizard of Oz?

A He says he is my new best friend and he wants to go to Planet Zubon with me next weekend.

TV shows we want on the big screen

The cinematic landscape is littered with terrible movies based on television shows. From Leave It to Beaver and Bewitched to The Dukes of Hazzard, the vast majority of these adaptations have not exactly been must-sees.

But with The A-Team arriving in theatres this weekend, it's a good time to ponder some other programs that are ready to make that leap:

Arrested Development

One of the smartest, funniest, most inventive shows ever, it barely lasted three seasons. While there's been talk of bringing the dysfunctional Bluth family to the big screen ever since the series ended in 2006, the project remains up in the air. Will Arnett, who played Gob Bluth, said at the Fox upfront that the movie would be a go someday, but that a new comedy he's doing with Arrested Development creator Mitch Hurwitz was delaying production.

The Golden Girls

Even though three of the four stars are no longer with us — Bea Arthur, Estelle Getty and Rue McClanahan — the series' core concept and its mix of brash humour and friendship would seem to be a hit with moviegoers. Just think about it: Four older women with distinct personalities, sharing a home in Miami, teasing and sometimes bickering with each other but remaining loyal throughout. The racy jokes that marked the show's sense of humour could be even more daring in film form. It could also be known by its alternate title, Sex and the City 3.

Fans of Arrested Development have been hearing rumours about a big-screen adaptation for several years now.

Jeopardy!

There are so many potential benefits here. First, by seeing it repeatedly, you can look like a total smarty pants in front of your friends, who will have no idea you're just memorizing the answers. Ooh! Singalongs to the theme song during the Final Jeopardy round.

The Joan Rivers Classics Collection on QVC.

The comedian and Celebrity Apprentice winner can talk, as we know from her catchphrase. And she's been peddling her line of jewelry and accessories through the home-shopping channel for about 20 years. Wouldn't it be more fun to see her sell her stuff with all the foul-mouthed candour of her stand-up routine? You could watch her work blue as she tries to sell you a turquoise-coloured necklace and matching earrings. And this would be a rare opportunity in which you'd be encouraged to use your cellphone in the theatre.

Yule Log.

It's a Christmas-morning staple at local television stations across the country: a shot of a piece of wood, burning in a fireplace, for hours on end while traditional carols swell in the background. Now imagine spending Christmas morning watching it on the big screen. It would seem ... warmer somehow, right? Buy a present for yourself, sneak a little eggnog in, maybe even make some new friends. Best of all, you get to escape your in-laws while still enjoying all the comforts of the holiday.

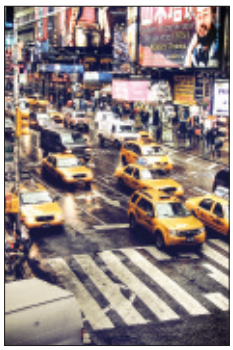
24 hour parties around the world

With summer almost in full bloom, Metro offers five spots for travellers who are looking to party well into the wee hours of the night.



METRO WORLD NEWS

Left: New York is the city that never sleeps for a reason. Right: Douse yourself in luxury on the beach of St. Tropez, France.

ST. TROPEZ, FRANCE

The party: Sip on a cocktail as you dip you toes in the water at über glamorous Nikki Beach (nikkibeach.com) and watch the sun go down before making your way to Les Caves du Roy the crème de la crème of night time follies. Baroque columns, gold brocade, and isn't that Paris Hilton.

Hangover Haven: Last night's crowd hides behind oversized shades as sip café au lait at le Café Sénéquier on Quai Jean Jaurès (senequier.com).

NEW YORK CITY

The party: The bartenders at Little Branch (Leroy Street) create killer cocktails. A Corpse Reviver No. 2 (lemon, absinthe, gin, Cointreau and Liliet Blanc) will set the party mood. Persistence is key if you want to get into the Big Apple's best clubs. Best bet is the Cafeteria on 7th Avenue. Open all night, this is a quirky and cool lounge bar where you can chill or party.

Hangover Haven: Gather your fellow sleep-deprived friends and head for brunch at Bouchon Bakery. The pecan sticky bun — a doughy brioche topped with brown sugar and a pyramid of pecan nuts is divine.

BERLIN

The party: Drink beer at White Trash (whitetrashfastfood.com), an eclectic mix between a steamy cabaret and tattoo parlor. Let the mayhem continue at Berghain (berghain.de). Decadent, illicit and devoid of all sexual inhibitions, this is a revelers delight.

Hangover Haven: De-tox at Badeschiff (arenaberlin.de/badeschiff). Part swimming pool part sauna, this converted river barge is the meeting point for the bold and beautiful Berliners.

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN

The party: Don't expect the nightlife to be a 24-hour debauchery in Sweden, it's more about playing it cool. Things get bubbling at P.A & Co, a funky brasserie loved by the hip media crowd before hitting Café Opera (cafeopera.se). A tearoom by day, the club-like bar, Operabaren, is Stockholm's busiest and it's all about the disco.

Hangover Haven: Depå's (Smålandsgatan 10) Snickers bar in a tart is possibly the best post-party guilty pleasure. Go sweat out the night's excesses with a sauna at Hasseluden Yasuragi (yasuragi.se).

BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA

The party: The magnificent belle époque Café Tortoni (cafetortoni.com.ar) perfectly sums up Buenos Aires's eclectic mix of cultures, from feverish tango to fine dining. Niceto Club (nicetoclub.com) is considered the trendiest hangout in town with live music and dance tunes.

Hangover Haven: Olsen's (Gorriti 5870) uncluttered 1960s style interior is quickly filled when ravenous filmmakers, producers and expatriates flock in for Sunday brunch. Sixty types of vodkas and a Scandinavian flavor menu.

Lohan mulling Apprentice bid

MAYBE SHE'S ALSO ADDICTED TO GETTING FIRED Despite her recent troubles, Lindsay Lohan may have at least one new job offer on the table, and this one comes from Donald Trump.

The mogul is looking to include Lohan in the next season of his Celebrity Apprentice reality show, according to Page Six.

"Donald is a friend of the family, and producers of Celebrity Apprentice have approached Lindsay to appear in the next season," her mom, Dina Lohan, says.

"She's deciding if she wants to do it or not, but she currently has three films in production, so she's very busy."

When Snooki met Aniston

EXCEPT JENNIFER ACTUALLY THOUGHT SHE WAS MEETING AN OOMPA LOOMPA Being on a popular reality TV show has its privileges, and one of them is getting to meet your idols, as Jersey Shore star Nicole "Snooki" Polizzi learned recently when she and her fellow cast-members got the chance to hang out with Jennifer Aniston. "She is so beautiful and so nice in person. That's honestly the first time I got starstruck," Polizzi tells Us Weekly. "I was hoping she would know who I was, but I don't think so. I said, 'Hi, I'm Snooki, I'm a really big fan and you are gorgeous.' She said, 'Thank you.' She was so polite. I was scared to even talk! I was nervous." METRO WORLD NEWS

Medical board still pushing to yank MJ doc's license

PUSH HARDER, PLEASE California's medical board has again asked a judge to suspend the license of the doctor charged in Michael Jackson's death.

The state attorney general's office argued in a brief filed Monday that the current prohibition against Dr. Conrad Murray using anesthetics is insufficient.

"While the defendant asserts that he will not practice in California, there is no legal bar to him changing his mind and engaging in practice in this state," the filing states.

It also argues, "It is not just his 'prescribing' practices that are in question, but his fundamental judgment and skill as a physician."

Dress shopping fuels wedding whispers for Bradley and Renee

NOW LET'S CHECK TO SEE WHICH ONE HAS A NEW MOVIE TO PROMOTE A recent shopping trip has sources speculating that Renee Zellweger and Bradley Cooper are planning on tying the knot soon, according to Star magazine. Zellweger was spotted spending two hours browsing at the Caroline Herrera boutique in West Hollywood with racks of wedding dresses nearby, and she ended up leaving with garment bag over her arm. "She just kept smiling when asked if she's getting married," a source says. To top that off, she and Cooper were spotted in New York days later taking her parents to lunch.

Lopez debuts new song ... over and over

ACTRESS, SINGER, DANCER, AND SADIST When Jennifer Lopez likes a song, she apparently really likes a song. During a recent party, the singer and actress reportedly had DJ Ruckus play a new single she'd recorded six times in a row, according to Page Six. "It was a bit much," a guest says. METRO WORLD NEWS

Metro Recipe of the Day

Seafood-stuffed Flounder

INGREDIENTS:

1 kg fresh or frozen and thawed skinless flounder, sole, or other fish fillets
500 g fresh sea scallops or peeled, deveined, fresh large shrimp
1 package frozen chopped spinach
1 medium onion, chopped
1 cup low-sodium herb stuffing mix
1/2 cup light sour cream
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 large egg, lightly beatens
Paprika

METHOD:

1. Rinse fish and pat dry. In large pot, bring 4 cups water to boil; add scallops and cook 1 to 3 minutes or just until scallops turn opaque. Drain scallops; cut into quarters. Cook spinach and onion according to directions on spinach package; drain well, pressing out excess liquid with paper towels. In medium-size bowl, using heavy spoon, slightly crush stuffing mix. Stir in spinach-onion mixture, stuffing mix, sour cream, Parmesan cheese and egg. Mix well. Carefully stir in scallops.

2. Preheat oven to 375°F (190°C). Measure length of fillets. Cut long fillets or overlap thinner ends of 2 short fillets to make pieces 18 to 20 cm in length. Spread about 1/2 cup of scallop mixture evenly on top of each fish piece. Roll fish pieces up, starting from narrow ends. Secure each roll with toothpicks. Place rolls, seam side down, in lightly greased 33 cm x 23 cm x 5 cm baking dish.

3. Bake 20 to 25 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with fork. To serve, carefully remove toothpicks and sprinkle fish rolls with paprika.

ARIES
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
You may feel sorry for someone you meet today but don't let your sympathy show or they will play on your feelings. Pretend you don't care.

TAURUS
APRIL 21-MAY 21
It does not matter what other people believe, it matters only that you have a right to be different. Others don't have to approve of your actions.

GEMINI
MAY 22-JUNE 21
Just this once it might be wise to meet a rival or competitor halfway, especially if they can help your ambitions get off the ground.

CANCER
JUNE 22-JULY 22
You need to deal with a family quarrel positively rather than hide your head in the sand and hope that it goes away.

LEO
JULY 23-AUG 23
If you go to extremes you will encourage others to be extreme as well, and the situation could quickly get out of hand.

VIRGO
AUG 24-SEPT 22
A few days from now you will know for certain if something you have been planning stands a realistic chance of success.

LIBRA
SEPT 23-OCT 23
The planets are warning you not to push yourself too hard or to allow your emotions to dictate your actions.

SCORPIO
OCT 24-NOV 22
Do something original and stand out from the crowd. By nature you are a leader rather than a follower, so be brave and be different.

SAGITTARIUS
NOV 23-DEC 21
If you are honest about the negative aspects of a relationship today you can quite easily turn those negatives into positives.

CAPRICORN
DEC 22-JAN 20
You have what it takes to win a battle of wits, either at work or in your social circle, but you would be wise not to make too big an issue of it.

AQUARIUS
JAN 21-FEB 18
Be true to who you are and what you believe, even if it means you clash with someone in a position of power.

PISCES
FEB 19-MARCH 20
You need to be open and honest, and even-handed, with everyone, even those who are not always fair-minded with you.
